

B i o g r a p h y

MONIKA ROSE

Monika Rose is the editor/founder of Manzanita Writers Press. With a Masters Degree in English, she teaches English at Lodi Unified and is Associate Professor of English adjunct at San Joaquin Delta College. Her book of poems, River by the Glass, published by GlenHill Publications, is available from her web site, monikarosewriter.com and at Amazon.com as well as at Small Press Distribution. The eBook was just released this year at Amazon for 2.99!

Monika is a poet and fiction writer, having published in Mindprint Review, Poetry Now, Tule Review, Mokehillian Review, Squaw Review, Rattlesnake

Review, and others, with work in a Yosemite collection called Yosemite Poets, by Scrub Jay Press and another anthology titled Shadows of Light. She edits Manzanita: Poetry and Prose of the Mother Lode and Sierra, with the latest collection titled Wild Edges (2010). Her current project is a collection of WWII stories, as told by an immigrant daughter, and a novel based on surveillance and voyeuristic obsession by a woman whose husband disappears on a fishing trip, set in a sleepy Sierra village rocked by a mysterious murder and a loss of innocence.